A Creator: is there one? Did God create the universe? Or did it happen by chance or a natural process of some kind? Is there any merit to the big bang theory? And how do all these scientific ideas mesh with the Bible? Lee Strobel, Rob Suggs, and Robert Elmer set off on a journey to help kids discover the answers to these questions in their book CASE FOR A CREATOR FOR KIDS. This book is laid out similarly to the other titles in the CASE FOR KIDS series, CASE FOR FAITH FOR KIDS, CASE FOR CHRIST FOR KIDS, and CASE FOR GRACE FOR KIDS. Each chapter tackles a big picture question, using research, interviews with scholars and theologians, and logical arguments to answer some of the toughest questions kids face. Four main categories are explored here:- Cosmology, the study of how the universe was formed.- Physics, how things in the world work.- Astronomy, the study of things outside our planet.- DNA, the instruction manual for building proteins. In each category, Strobel takes time to ask some difficult questions that any kid who has been in a science class or watched any amount of Discovery channel may have come across: How did the universe begin? What are the odds that the universe simply came to be by chance? The arguments provided here are pretty straightforward for the 3rd - 5th grade age range, and will definitely spur on further conversation. Questions, definitions of terms, and further commentaries are set aside in helpful side bubbles that help to clarify main points. In the last section of the book, a collection of four stories relating to the main points discussed earlier in the book are included. These stories sometimes are hard to follow and very loosely introduce each topic to the reader.
